UFO kidnappers take secretary — and her car

Secretary vanishes after encounter with space aliens

UFO kidnap!

ABDUCTED! Jackie Smith told co-workers that a four-eyed space alien appeared in her car!

A 39-year-old secretary vanished from the face of the earth less than 24 hours after she told friends that space aliens were trying to abduct her!

Now authorities are trying to figure out if Jackie Smith is in hiding or in the clutches of the extraterrestrials who allegedly had been calling her.

By HENRY WEBB

"Either way it's an alarming situation," UFO investigator Jenny Randles told reporters in Warrington, England. "The young woman who disappeared is not some kind of UFO nut.

"Her friends and co-workers say she is rock solid. When she told them space aliens were after her they believed her."

The woman's boss, Andy Egan, recalled how terrified the wreman was the day before she vanished.

"She turned up at the office in a panic," he said. "She said she was driving along in her Toyota when it was whisked into the air and mysteriously transported 'to a different place.'

"The next thing she remembered was waking up in the car about six hours later with blue dots on her ankles and neck."

According to a co-worker, Sally Warren, Miss Smith also said that several "strange beings suddenly appeared in her car" a few seconds before the vehicle was transported through the air.

Miss Smith described the aliens as being "tall, manlike and extremely muscular, with small round heads and four eyes," her friend said.

"The blue dots on Miss Smith's ankles and neck are classic signs of testing by aliens," said Mrs. Randles. "She may be in hiding, terrified they'll come back to get her.

"It's also possible they may already have come back and Miss Smith is now with them."

The young woman's mother, Rose Smith, is frantic. She said her daughter used to telephone her every day — but hasn't called since she disappeared.

"Something bad has happened to her, I just know it," said Mrs. Smith, 66, of London. "Jackie isn't the kind to play a joke of any kind, much less something so upsetting as this.

"[illegible] if these [illegible] did get her?" she added. "I pray to God that they bring her back unharmed. The least they could do is come and get me.

"The least they could do is let me be with my daughter."

Government officials refused to discuss Miss Smith's disappearance and referred questions to police.

Police spokesman Michael Fletcher said detectives are baffled by the woman's disappearance. There is no evidence of foul play. And a search of her house revealed that all of her clothes are still there.

"She left in a hurry," Fletcher said. "Her car is in the driveway. Her closets are full of clothes. Her checkbook is on a dresser.

"I've never been a big believer in UFOs," he said. "But this case makes me wonder.

"Maybe they do exist and maybe they are coming down to Earth. It's not a pretty thought."

RAPE SUSPECT John Holland was described as an intelligent guy. The suspect was a female pro and considered a nice guy.

Cops: Hypnotist used skills to attack students

By SUSAN JIMISON

A mild-mannered rapist gained tremendous power over his victims, police say — by using hypnosis to get them to cooperate in sexual assaults!

The 33-year-old suspect, John Calvin Holland, was arrested and charged with third-degree criminal sexual conduct after a student at Clemson University in Clemson, S.C., picked him out of a police lineup.

Since then more than 20 other students have revealed they, too, were victims of assault by the soft-spoken female pro.

"Holland said he was conducting a psychology experiment and asked his victims if they wanted to be involved in the project," Thea McCrary, a spokesman for the university's police department, told The NEWS.

"In the case for which he was arrested, he used [illegible] a long, drawn-out hypnotizing procedure with his victim. While this was going on, the rape occurred. We believe he pressed on his victim's neck, blocking blood flow to the brain and causing unconsciousness."

After the 18-year-old victim told campus police what had happened, word spread about the bizarre hypnotic rapist and other students with similar stories volunteered rape.

Holland was arrested in his car about 1 a.m. Saturday as he was driving away from the campus. He was released on $5,000 bail.

Holland, who is married and has a child, was employed as a graduate assistant at the university. He had a good rapport with students and was well-liked by his colleagues.

"He presented himself very well — he is college-educated and well-read.

"The first complainant said Holland entered the student's dormitory room looking for a roommate who, he said, had an appointment with him to be a subject in his psychology study. The victim agreed to take the place of the student and later remembered being assaulted under hypnosis."

Miss McCrary said that complainants at two other universities have joined the crowd of students victimized by the hypnotist. Holland faces 10 years if convicted.

Nude jogger causes accident

A 17-year-old girl told police she panicked and backed her car into another auto — because a naked jogger scared her.

"It's the best story I ever heard to explain an accident," said she was leaving a girlfriend's house when she saw a man jog by, naked from the waist down.

She told cops she looked at the guy and he ran toward her car.

Getting fat scares kids

Little girls learn to be afraid of getting fat long before they hit their teens, a fascinating new study shows.

They begin to worry about gaining weight as early as 5 or 6 years of age and they develop negative attitudes toward fat people at the same time, according to new research.

"The available evidence suggests that by 8 to 9 years of age, children dislike the obese body build," the study concluded. Scientists blamed TV for forming the anti-fat attitudes by equating "beauty and the good life."

37-year-old mom of 5 runs off with boy, 11

For shame!

COPS nabbed housewife Janette Buckley, right, after she disappeared for five days with schoolboy Wayne Burgess.

She dumps hubby — for neighbor's son!

By JOE BERGER

Nightailing housewife Janette Buckley, 37, was being quizzed by cops after she dumped her stunned hubby and five kids — to run away with an 11-year-old neighbor boy!

The lovestruck lady was on the lam with shy schoolboy Wayne Burgess for five days before Wayne walked into police headquarters in his hometown of Corby, England, to give himself up.

Janette was nabbed a short time later, but lawmen said they hadn't decided whether to file charges against her.

"No matter what the police do, my wife needs help," said her hapless-mad hubby Tom Buckley, 42. "The woman actually thinks she's in love with that little boy.

"I'm so ashamed of what she's done I can hardly bear it. We've been married almost 18 years but that's all over now."

The bizarre romance blossomed several months ago, shortly after Wayne's family moved next door to the Buckleys.

"It was about February that I started to get a little concerned about all the time Wayne was spending with Mrs. Buckley," recalled the boy's mystified mom Kathleen Burgess.

"She used to entice by claiming it was to see me, but after about five minutes she would ask to speak to Wayne alone. I could see there was something unnatural going on there, but when I spoke to Janette she just laughed it off," said Mrs. Burgess.

"I told Wayne to stay away from her, but he started sneaking over to her house behind my back. Then the next thing I knew they had run off together."

Infatuated Janette and her baby beau hopped a bus and skipped out of town, but cops refused to say where they went or how they spent their time together.

"There are still a lot of questions to be asked," a police spokesman said.

But Janette's fed up hubby, who took a leave of absence from his job to look after the couple's five kids, said he's got all the answers he needs.

"I know what she did," said the tough-luck laborer. "She ran off with a boy scarcely out of diapers. Now she says she wants to come home — but as far as I'm concerned it's too late for that."

Thief swipes church safe during service

A quiet thief stole a 600-pound safe from the office of a church while 150 true believers praised the Lord — 75 feet away!

Whoever took that safe "sure was quick," said the Rev. D. L. Belmont, pastor of a Church of God in Lantana, Fla. "We're just baffled."

In spite of what happened, the snatcher gives the thief his best — almost.

"I don't really wish anything tragic would happen to him," he said. "But it wouldn't make me feel bad if he slammed his fingers in the door while trying to open it.

"Just a reminder," he said,

Couple lives together but they haven't spoken in 4 years!

I'd rather talk to my pigeons than my wife

By RICK LANNING

Norman and Marlene Duffy live in the same house — but they haven't spoken to each other since 1984.

In fact, Norman, 48, a husky steelworker, admits he thinks more of his pigeons than he does of his wife. The only reason they stay together is because of their four children.

SILENT wife Marlene Duffy does all the chores around the house and keeps her mum hubby in sandwiches and tea.

In order to live together under the same roof in Goole, England, the wordless couple have worked out an arrangement that is barely tolerable to both of them.

Each morning at 8:30, Norman leaves home to spend the day with his pigeons.

Marlene leaves him $5 spending money on the table, along with a half quota of tobacco. Sometimes she adds a dollar to bet on the horses.

At lunchtime, Norman's freshly made sandwiches are waiting for him outside his pigeon loft. His evening meal is left on the kitchen table.

Tuesday is Norman's big night out. That's when Marlene leaves him an extra $6 to buy beer when he plays dominoes with friends at a local pub.

The problem is that Norman has been found guilty of claiming unemployment benefits while his wife worked part-time in a factory.

Through his attorney Max Gold, Norman is fighting the charges.

"I had no idea she was working," the steelworker told a court. "We have no contact with each other."

Marlene agreed, telling magistrates, "He didn't know I was working because I never told him."

The judges didn't believe Norman. They found him guilty of two counts of making false claims for unemployment benefits.

Marlene, 43, told the court she always cashed her husband's unemployment checks and was totally responsible for running the household.

She added tartly, "In our 22 years of marriage, he has done very little. I handle all the decorating and maintenance jobs.

"All he's interested in is his allotment and his pigeons. He's married to them — not me."

When the couple's marriage began falling apart four years ago, they divided up the house and agreed to stay together until their children, aged 12 to 18, were out of school.

The silent hubby disputes the charges and says he can't understand why he is being prosecuted.

He added, "I was quite happy to leave everything to her.

"I never knew she was working."

After hearing the case, magistrates in Goole delayed sentencing until they could receive reports on the couple.

A friend of the family said Norman and Marlene still are not speaking.

"She sleeps upstairs, he sleeps downstairs and takes care of his pigeons," the friend stated.

"When it rains, he has another roof — he just visits his sister."

Jail for woman who killed a mom to steal her unborn baby

By PETE COOKE

A woman who was so obsessed with having a child that she kidnapped a pregnant mom and performed a crude cesarean on her to take the baby has been sentenced to life behind bars.

The ghastly case ended when a judge in Albuquerque, N.Mex., gave 20-year-old Darci Pierce a life term for murdering Cindy Ray, 23.

Evidence in the chilling trial showed that Mrs. Pierce was so obsessed with having a baby she put on weight and pretended to be pregnant. The act was so convincing that even her husband believed she was due to deliver at any time.

Even though she wasn't pregnant Mrs. Pierce did have a sinister plan to bring home a baby.

On a sweltering afternoon last July, Mrs. Pierce parked her battered Volkswagen at a health clinic and waited for a pregnant woman near full term to come out.

Mrs. Ray, who was 8½ months pregnant, finished her final prenatal checkup and walked out of the clinic toward a surprising fate.

Although both women were married to airmen stationed at Kirtland Air Force Base, they did not know each other. Mrs. Pierce pulled a realistic toy gun and ordered the pregnant woman into her car.

Mrs. Pierce then drove her prisoner into the Manzano Mountains east of Albuquerque.

Prosecutor Harry Zimmerman said Mrs. Ray was strangled, but still alive when Mrs. Pierce "used the victim's car key to cut open her abdomen and remove the baby."

While Cindy Ray lay bleeding to death, Mrs. Pierce cut the umbilical cord and then splashed blood on herself in an attempt to make it appear she had given birth.

When she later showed up at an Albuquerque hospital, Mrs. Pierce claimed that she had delivered her own baby girl after going into labor on the side of a highway. But suspicious doctors called police, who were already searching for Cindy Ray. Mrs. Pierce led authorities to the body.

"Her motive for this mutilation, murder — is not the product of a diseased mind, but the product of a diseased heart and soul," prosecutor Michael Cox told the jurors.

Mrs. Pierce was found guilty, but mentally ill on all counts and given the minimum sentence for each — life for murder, 18 years for kidnapping and 18 months for child abuse.

The sentences are to run concurrently and she will not become eligible for parole for [illegible] years.

Cindy Ray's husband, took the couple's 2-year-old son and newborn daughter, Amelia, back to Payson, Utah.

He left the Air Force and enrolled at Brigham Young University, studying to become a teacher.

"The hardest part isn't for me," he said.

"The hardest part is watching these kids go through the pain. To see that little boy hug me and cry, and to see that little girl grow up without her mom."

CONVICTED of murder, Darci Pierce walks into the courtroom for sentencing with her attorney Tom Jameson.

Piano mover had to take convict to prison

Chubby drug peddler's too fat for courtroom

By RAFE KLINGER

Fatso defendant Daniel M. Elkins was so huge and difficult to move that his trial had to be switched from the courtroom to the lobby when his king-size wheelchair wouldn't fit through the doors.

Then, authorities had to hire a piano mover to transport Elkins' 400-pound bulk from Columbus, Ohio, to the state penitentiary at Orient.

"In my 13½ years here, this has never happened," sighed Judge Tommy L. Thompson of his experience with the gigantic defendant.

Indeed, even bailiff Mike Watson was awed by the size of the 62-year-old Elkins when he was wheeled into the Franklin County Courthouse.

"We've had some big people, but he was a big, big boy," said Watson. "They say he's never been tall when he stands, but I've never seen him stand up."

Because of his huge bulk and a myriad of medical problems, Elkins can only stand with difficulty. And his extra-wide wheelchair makes it difficult to wheel him through many doorways.

When his chair wouldn't fit through Thompson's courtroom doors, the judge had to switch the hearing to the lobby.

There, as spectators gawked at the gigantic defendant, Elkins pleaded guilty to charges of selling the prescription drug Percodan from his home. The judge gave Elkins 3 to 15 years and a $15,000 fine.

Elkins was turned over to sheriff's deputies and his size became their headache. Because of the difficulty of getting him in and out of his chair, authorities chose not to put him in a cell. Instead, he was placed in a room normally used as a jail recreation area.

Then, came the problem of transport.

Authorities couldn't find a van with a hydraulic lift to hoist Elkins inside.

Finally, officials contacted a piano moving company which charged $75 to cart the gigantic prisoner off to the slammer in Orient.

Three families have been wiped out by killer flocks

Giant turkeys go on rampage of death!

Terrified ranchers are fortifying their homes after three families in isolated hill country were wiped out in a bloody attack — by a flock of giant turkeys!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

The wholesale slaughter of 14 people along with livestock and family pets has so frightened residents around Neuquen, Argentina, that a special provincial crisis team has been set up to investigate the bizarre bird blitz.

"We assure the population of this area that every step is being taken to find and eliminate the turkey threat," said Rogelio Trenton de Salamanca, chief officer of the crisis team. "There are alert to signs of the birds and a special corps of army commandos/ecology people are operating in the vicinity.

"We have found some signs of the giant birds, but have had no firm sightings yet."

Reports of the turkey attacks reached authorities in early March, several days after the family of rancher Miguel Ortiz was discovered murdered and mutilated in their humble ranch house.

"The ferocity of the attack is appalling," said one expert, Dr. Manuel Dominguez Plaza. "Turkeys as a rule are bad tempered, it's true — but these birds are downright bloodthirsty.

"The birds apparently attack without warning, killing and maiming as every living thing in their path."

Authorities believe that the birds have their nests within 10 miles of the Ortiz ranch and have begun an intensive search of the area.

HOW TO READ ANYONE'S MIND

I know exactly what you are thinking right now.

You are quite intrigued. And most skeptical. You sincerely believe that is absolutely impossible. That no one can really read anyone else's mind. From miles away? Never!

You have every right to be unconvinced. "Mind-reading" is usually a stunt performed on TV or in a club. We all know that such demonstrations rely on some kind of secret gimmick.

That while it's great entertainment—it's an out and out fake. Certainly not the real thing.

The real thing—for use in real life—is what I am talking about. Like you, I was totally doubtful that it could ever be done "off-stage." Especially by the average person.

AT LAST! THE REVOLUTIONARY TECHNIQUE THAT TURNS FANTASY INTO SHEER REALITY!

Something happened that converted me from a die-hard cynic into a fervent believer. The "Mind-Read" Manuscript created my mind.

As a publisher, I read many manuscripts. But this particular one caught my eye at once. I had heard about the author. He is a highly-gifted psychic with a record for pioneering in the field of extra-sensory perception.

His manuscript stunned me. Practically knocked me off my chair. Any lingering doubt I ever had about the "impossibility" of person-to-person mind communication went flying out the window!

I just couldn't believe my eyes. Here it was, in black and white. Written in simple language anyone could understand. An easy-to-learn break-through technique to enable an ordinary man or woman to read someone else's mind. Anytime. Anywhere. At will!

A TECHNIQUE SO POWERFUL IT MIGHT EVEN BE ILLEGAL!

My first inclination was to burn the manuscript. To destroy it entirely. In the wrong hands, it could be dynamite!

Then I had second thoughts. Why should I be a censor? I believe in a free press. So I printed up a limited edition for distribution only to those who will use the technique carefully and wisely within the law.

If you are such a person, I am more than willing to let you try it out without your risking one cent. That's how confident I am of the integrity and power of this most innovative technique.

Everything is explained in easy, step-by-step detail. No special experience or education is required. Even a child can do it. Whether you want to read the mind of your husband, wife, lover, boss, employee, friend, neighbor, relative, business associate—or even a perfect stranger.

START READING MINDS TO START A WHOLE NEW WONDERFUL LIFE!

Imagine what it would mean to you to have instant access to another person's thoughts whenever you wished.

You would have immediate, lifetime control over your family, friends, neighbors, business associates—even perfect strangers.

Like it or not, they would come under your direct personal domination. You would know what they were thinking at any given time. No one, not even the sharpest human, could hide a thing from you. Others might be fooled by their words. But not you!

You already know why. You would be able to read their inner-most, hidden thoughts. As clearly as if you were looking at the pages of a book set in type one inch high. Without their ever knowing about it! Unless you, yourself, told them!

Dealing with the opposite sex would be a pleasure. Imagine knowing in advance just what to expect from your date or mate. No more guesswork. No more wasted time. No more frustration. For once, you are boss!

And watch the money roll in. You could out-negotiate anyone in any business situation. "See-through" sales double-talk straight to the plain facts. No one gets the better of you. Not when you can read minds!

Whether you're quoting a price or asking for a raise, you'll never short-change yourself. You'll always know the other party's bottom line. And get it!

There's no "gamble" in gambling when you bet on a sure thing. You'll smile when you sit down to play poker or blackjack. When you know the other players' cards, it is hard to lose!

When a loved one is far away, you'll be at ease. Merely follow the technique to find out what he or she is feeling and doing. It's a lot cheaper than a long-distance telephone call!

This is just the beginning. Day-in and day-out for the rest of your life, you will enjoy using the technique in countless ways. To be happier, richer, more successful. To have more friends. To be more popular. To be more attractive to the opposite sex.

ACCEPT MY "NO-RISK" OFFER AND PREPARE FOR A MIRACLE!

For the moment, suspend your skepticism and mail the coupon. I'll send you The "Mind-Read" Manuscript for only $7 — backed by a guarantee which totally eliminates any possible risk on your part.

I guarantee that your check or money order will not be cashed for at least 31 days after your copy is mailed to you.

The King has pulled plucky teen back from death four times!

Elvis is my special angel

His records brought me out of my coma, says brave girl

By ROSE GRADY

Teenager Michele Pritzl stared death in the face four times but she battled her way back with help from one of God's special angels — Elvis!

"I'm alive today by the grace of the Lord and with a lot of help from Elvis," the gutsy 17-year-old told The NEWS.

Michele's terrible string of tragedies began when she was only 12 and suffering agonizing head pains. A CAT scan revealed she had an inoperable brain tumor. The horrifying news shattered Michele's mom.

"I cried hysterically," 42-year-old divorcee Delores Pritzl recalled as she sat with Michele in their home in Warrenville, Ill. "I felt as if I had been torn into a thousand little pieces."

Radiation treatments reduced the tumor by 75 percent, but Michele's hair fell out and the blinding headache pain persisted.

To ease her daughter's suffering, the adoring mom played records from Michele's large and treasured Elvis Presley collection.

Because the pain persisted, it was feared that the tumor was growing back and another CAT scan was ordered. The night before she was to have it, their minister, Rev. Donald Hoffman stopped by the house.

"He put his hands on my head and we all prayed," Michele recalled. "He asked God to make the pain go away."

The next day, her baffled doctors told her the tumor had completely vanished.

"I was more shocked than when I first learned Michele had the tumor," mom Delores said. "Michele told me she felt the tumor leaving. It was a miracle."

Two years later, tragedy struck a second time when Michele suffered a stroke and lay in a coma for eight days.

Day after day, her loving mom kept a bedside vigil, praying and playing Michele's favorite Elvis religious songs. Once again, prayers were answered and the youngster suddenly awoke from her coma.

A couple of years later, Michele had recovered to the point where she could walk and run.

Then tragedy struck for a third time. While looking for her dog, she was struck down by a pickup truck.

At the hospital, doctors found that Michele had suffered another stroke.

"I prayed to God and said, 'If You're going to take her take her now. She's suffered enough,'" Delores said.

Once again, she kept a lonely vigil and played Michele's Elvis records.

And 29 days later, Michele awoke from her coma. But the ordeal had left her blind.

But slowly, Michele battled her way back until she was well enough to leave the hospital and go home with her mom.

"She accepts everything that life hands her and just goes on," Delores said.

And there's no doubt that Michele will never give up her battle to be a winner. She's one tough little rookie.

RADIATION treatment helped Michele overcome her brain tumor but the gutsy lit-tle girl lost her hair.

LOVING mom Delores Pritzl has saved Michele's suffering by playing Elvis Presley songs.

'LONELY' MAN KILLS 22 CATS!

A computer program analyst admitted that he strangled a kitten because he thought it was rejecting him — then tortured and killed 21 others for no reason at all!

In a Canadian courtroom packed with angry animal lovers whose cats vanished mysteriously, the 25-year-old Craig Farkas pleaded guilty while the spectators hissed at him.

Authorities in Ottawa said Farkas' hands and arms were his weapons after decapitating a bag containing a dead cat into a garbage bin.

According to defense attorney Rick Brooks, Farkas' problems began after he moved in Ottawa in January 1986 to start a new job. Brooks said Farkas had trouble meeting people and making friends and decided to adopt a kitten that November to ease his loneliness.

But Farkas left the kitten with an acquaintance while he was out of town at Christmas and returned to find that his although Farkas blamed himself for the kitten's death, he immediately went out and adopted another one.

But the second kitten wasn't as friendly as the first and Farkas felt "rejected" by the animal, according to the attorney.

Upset over the rejection, Farkas flew into a rage and strangled the helpless kitten, the lawyer said.

Later Farkas began stealing cats from front porches and backyards, torturing the pets by electric wounding them for Mar Lindsay. Most of the cats Farkas killed were stolen, but some were acquired from animal shelters or through newspaper ads placed by people looking for good homes for kittens, Lindsay said.

Shortly before his case was scheduled to go to trial Farkas pleaded guilty to a charge of killing a domestic animal, said authorities.

He was sentenced to three years' probation, fined $2,500 and ordered to perform 100 hours of community service in Calgary, where he now lives.

One cop finally outwitted the wrong guru

By LAUREL BOWIE

Hotshot cop Khalid Dhondy terrorized trembling citizens day after day till a hare-brained Hindu guru got enough of his guff — and turned him into a screeching, flea-scratching cat!

Swami turns a cop into flea-bitten cat

He hides from dogs, chases mice ■ uses a litter box

"My husband still looks like a man, but he has the mind of a good-for-nothing tomcat," Khalid's weeping wife Daisy told reporters in little Varanghan, India.

"He runs around on all fours, meowing at me and rubbing against my legs. When our old dog comes around, Khalid skulks under the bed and hides. He sleeps on the floor in the corner and uses a litter box when he has to go. Our whole house is starting to smell bad because of him and his stinky habits.

"The doctor says it's some kind of power of suggestion that a cat has. He says poor Khalid can be cured, but if they don't do something fast, I'll go crazy."

Extraordinary Khalid, 42, had been the law enforcer in Varanghan for 15 years — until he was far and away the most detested man in town.

"Khalid is a bully who loves to push people around and beat them with his stick just to show them who's boss," said vegetable merchant Sri Ajay Naik.

He harassed honest citizens for no reason and put people in jail when they've done nothing wrong. He beat them everywhere."

But the pompous policeman has been a starring player since the day a [illegible] Khalid tried to arrest him for singing in public.

"A weird-looking stranger was walking down the street humming and singing and Khalid rushed up to him and told him to shut up. Nobody recalled.

"The whole crowd of the stranger and then started [illegible] Khalid tried to arrest him for disturbing the peace.

"Khalid knew who I was," Swami Rao said, "and we all were living trouble. You will give the fellow a little bit of a rat."

The men started talking in [illegible] Khalid to stick out his tongue. All at once he dropped to his hands and knees and I saw him run on all fours all the way to his home.

"And he's been like that ever since. He's still fighting off imaginary fleas.

"He even dragged in a big old mouse the other day and I had to take it away from him."

His wife is excellent. "The doctors are working with him every day.

"I just hope they do it before he completely gets [illegible]."

Life in the mob is deadly dull

Life in the mob is dull, dull, dull!

That's the word from Joseph Pistone, an FBI agent who spent six years posing as a Mafia boss!

Pistone, who pretended to be a jewel thief named Donnie Brasco, managed to infiltrate the Bonanno crime family.

He said he quickly became bored with other Mafia figures who were brutish and inept.

"The thing I will never forget is the daily grind of trying to make a score that they face from the time they wake up in the morning to the time they go to sleep at night," Pistone told a Senate subcommittee on crime.

"The mob was their job as well as their whole life. What they did for a living was on their minds far more than it is with ordinary 'straight' citizens."

Nervy lady gets Zsa Zsa's goat

A major tiff erupted when a minor TV personality on a Big Apple talk show burst into a dressing room where guest star Zsa Zsa Gabor was being made up.

Chanda Cohen, the gossip reporter for Regis Philbin's Morning Show in New York City, says she just wanted to see if Zsa Zsa was finished so she could get her makeup on, but the world-famed jet-setter flew into a fury showering her with insults.

"She left in a huff and stormed onto the set," says Chanda.

But Zsa Zsa claims Chanda was really a bully and far from the innocent she claims to be.

"In all my years, I've never met a rudder woman in the world — and I know everybody," said Zsa Zsa, still steaming over the incident.

According to Zsa Zsa, the whole mess began when she agreed to go on the show to help Regis out.

"Regis begged me to go on the show," said Zsa Zsa. "My agent says, 'Would you do Regis Philbin? His show is getting very dull.'

"I love him. He's one of my dearest friends.

"So I went on a favor."

The show had only one dressing room and Zsa Zsa was in it having her makeup put on, wearing just panty hose and a bra while her dress was being ironed.

Suddenly, in enters the head of a stranger, Chanda, according to Zsa Zsa.

"I don't know who she is and I don't want to know.

"She runs in and says, 'Get up.'" says Zsa Zsa.

"I said, 'Look, my dear, I'm getting my face done. I'll be out in a minute.'

"She says, 'Get up, get up, get up.'

"I said, 'Look, I'm not getting up. I'm not going on the show first and I'm not even dressed.' She tells me, 'Never mind, get up.'"

The sassy sophisticate finally unnerved poor Zsa Zsa who ran fuming onto the set.

"Regis, I've never been so insulted in my life.

"Who is that terrible bitch in the dressing room?" Zsa Zsa asked.

Zsa Zsa was so distraught over the incident that she forgot to plug her book (Lifetime Is Not Enough), new cosmetics line and even left her purse with her diamond earrings in it on the set.

"In all my life I would never talk even to the lowest of the low that way.

"I feel like giving her a good, swift kick," said the furious Hungarian bimbo. — New York Post.

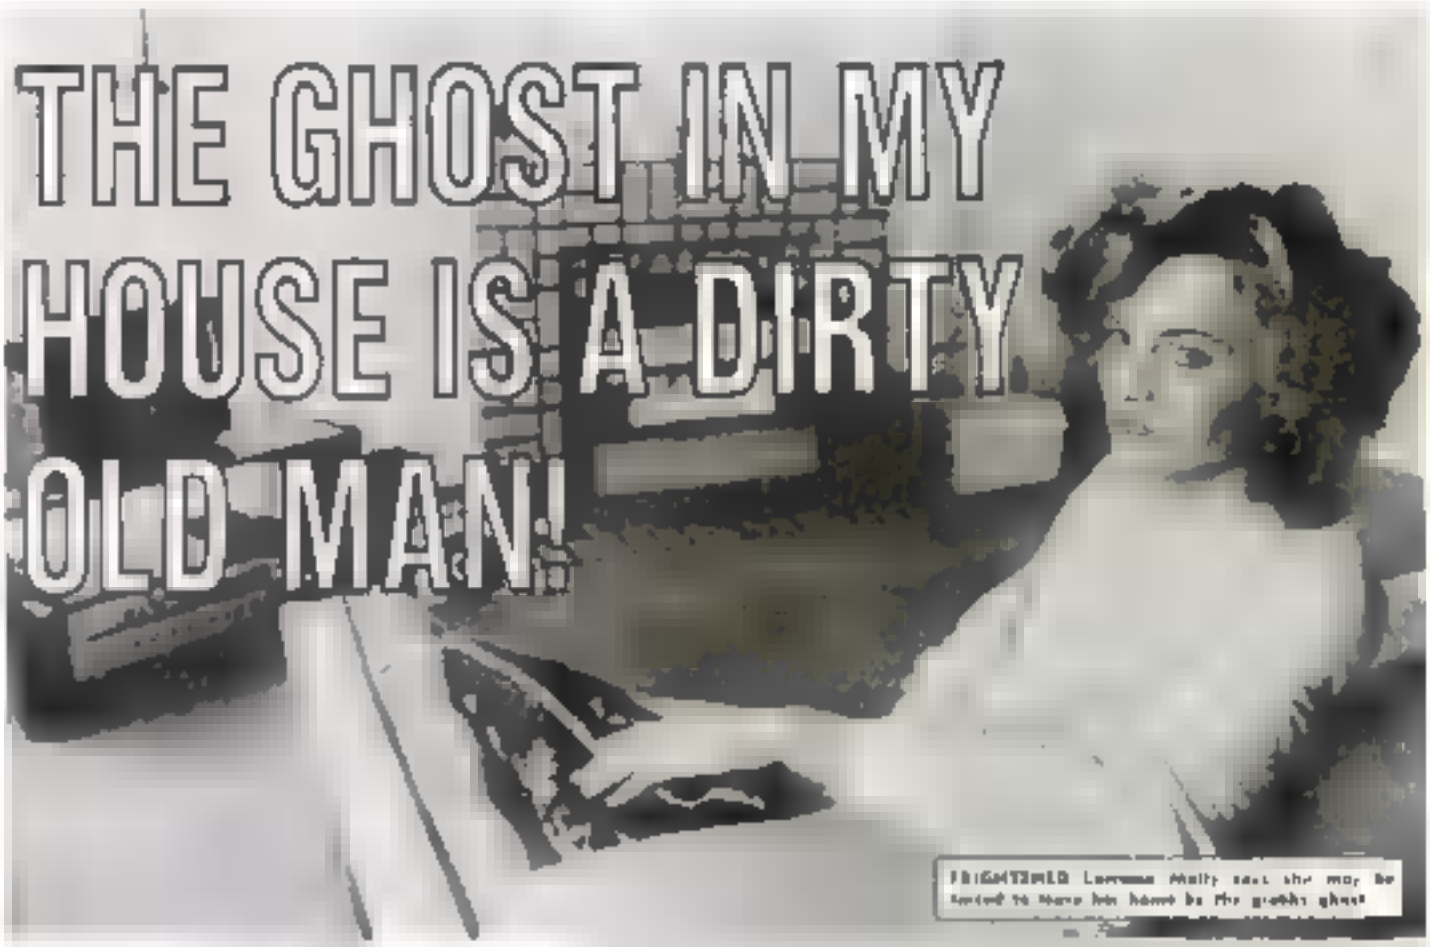
THE GHOST IN MY HOUSE IS A DIRTY OLD MAN!



FRIGHTENED Lorraine Holly said she may be forced to move her home by the grubby ghost

By JOE DIGGS

Desperate divorcee Lorraine Holly is ready to flee her home to escape the attentions of a grubby old ghost who sneaks into her bedroom — then crawls into bed and cuddles up next to her!

"He shows up at my bedside every morning, and sometimes he slides right under the covers with me," flabbergasted Lorraine, 31, told reporters in Portsmouth, England.

"He really is a nasty old thing, too. He loves to put his hands all over my body and I have to fight him off."

"He calls me Norma, and he says it like he's crying out for her. I figure Norma must be someone he was once in love with."

The mortified mom is so sick of the spectral spook that she had Pastor [illegible] Potter conduct a special ritual in her house to try to drive the drooling spook away.

"I know the woman and I'm certain she's telling us the truth," Pastor Potter said later.

"We wouldn't have wasted all that time if we didn't believe every word she says. Unfortunately, I'm afraid the thing is still coming around and bothering her."

The [illegible] ghost started haunting the house Lorraine shares with her 10-month-old daughter Holly several weeks ago.

"He looks like a man about 50 years old — but there's no doubt that he's not of this world," she said. "He's very eerie.

"At first he came around in the mornings and just stood by the side of the bed, then vanished. But lately he's gotten a lot braver and he's started climbing into bed with me.

"The first time he cuddled up to me I was so startled I lay real still and eventually he went away. Now I kick and slap at him and that usually is enough to send him packing."

And when he isn't trying to make sweet music with Lorraine, the frisky phantom loves to sit down and hang out a tune on her electric organ.

"He plays the same weird melody over and over again," said the frustrated lady. "It's enough to drive you crazy."

And she's convinced the mischievous spirit stops to play with happy-go-lucky Holly on occasion, too.

"Sometimes I'll go into the baby's room and she'll be wriggling and giggling like she's tickling her," said the mystified mom.

"I can't see him doing it, but I know it is.

"And several times Holly has told me about the nice man who comes to visit her. I think she actually likes our dirty old ghost."

PARENTS SHATTERED IN WAKE OF HIGH-VOLTAGE HORROR

College student electrocuted in fraternity prank

By RICK LANNING

Thousands of volts of electricity snuffed out the life of a college student after he stripped to his shorts and waded in a pond in what was meant to be a harmless fraternity prank.

Bryan Higgins, 20, screamed and shook as the powerful current ripped through his body. A human chain was quickly formed in a desperate try to rescue him. Two other students were shocked in the effort. City lifeguards were eventually able to pull Higgins' lifeless body to shore.

Although officials at State University of New York in Albany claimed the accidental death did not involve hazing, the fraternity banned all fraternity and sorority pledge activities for the rest of the school year.

[illegible] Saturday night [illegible] campus residences said Bryan and other members of the fraternity were [illegible] to be a prank. The night was [illegible] Higgins and the fraternity members stripped down to their shorts to wade in it. The accident could have happened under any circumstances."

Campus police blamed an electrical fault in a metal locker that fell from a pickup truck in the pond. Water from the pond was [illegible] right to the bank.

No charges will be lodged against any members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, said Sweeney.

Albany County District Attorney Sol Greenberg, who teaches law at the university, said the situation "has revealed no negligence on the part of the students."

"Even at the time, small pockets of students, many shocked, were trying to rescue him," said Greenberg.

Bryan, a tight end for the football team, was a well-known athlete and was very popular.

"There are sharp kids here — some of the best-behaved students in the state. They feel like they've lost a member of their own family."

Bryan was totally shocked when he walked over the [illegible] part of the [illegible].

"The second his feet hit the ground over the edge, he grabbed himself and the electricity shot through him," said Greenberg.

"There wasn't anything anybody could do."

Bryan had been a defensive back, wide receiver and team captain with his high school team. He graduated in 1985.

Bryan's mother, Angela Higgins, said, "He was a wonderful son. He never gave me a day's trouble."

Greenberg said the freak accident that cost Bryan his life may have been triggered by a storm just [illegible].

A freak storm hit the area with heavy wet snow and ice. A [illegible] tree was uprooted and was blown across the roadway that carried the power to shut out.

"It's just tragic this had to happen."

Will county give flasher park job?

A man who says he has exposed himself in public in Miami as 20,000 times shouldn't be denied an outdoor job with the county parks department simply because he's a flasher, lawyers, state labor officials ruled.

Kirsten McKenzie, 41, was the final result of his battle to land a summer job in Madison. His case, which pits state department officials armed with the claim of discrimination

In an interview with The Wisconsin State Journal last year, McKenzie said he'd exposed himself [illegible] to 20,000 times.

In fact, at the time he applied for jobs with the Dane County Parks Department and the Department of Public Works, McKenzie was in jail for lewd and lascivious behavior.

County attorney Judith Doyle said McKenzie was turned down for the jobs because he would be "a threat to the safety of the public" and "administrators cannot control his exhibitionist behavior."

State equal rights officer Laurie Barbeau, however, ruled that since McKenzie's flashing took place indoors, his criminal record should have no bearing on outdoor employment. McKenzie and the county officials were [illegible] to resolve their differences through negotiation.

Swallows' tell-tail sign of love

It's official: Lady barn swallows find long-tailed males sexier than short-tailed males.

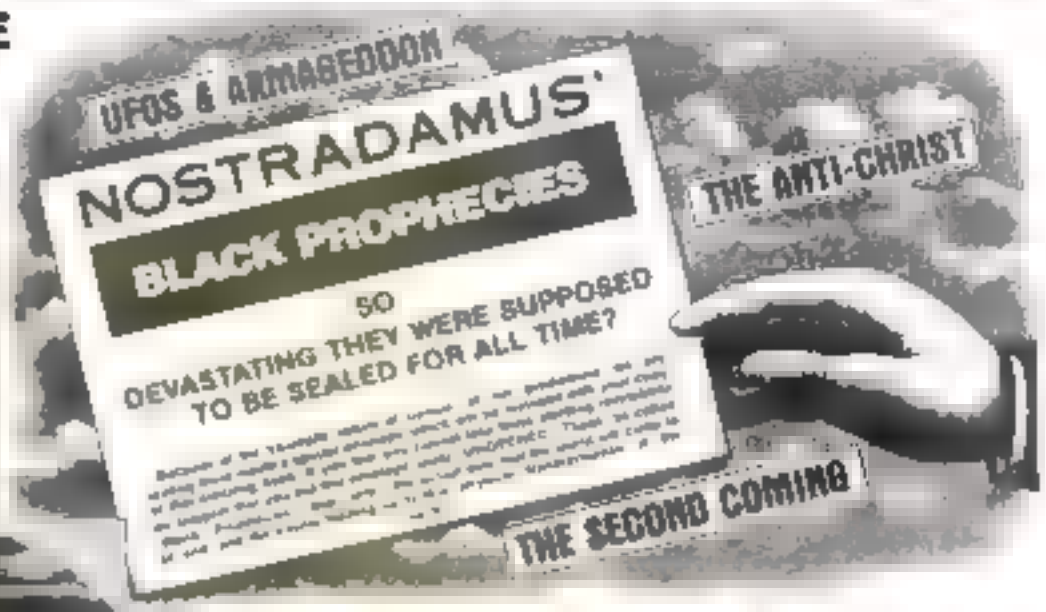
It took a Swedish scientist 17 years of study to reach that startling conclusion. But Anders Moller of the University of Uppsala says it's the first evidence that monogamous birds choose partners on the basis of physical charms.

Moller said his years of research proved that among barn swallows in Lapland, male birds with long tails "are more successful in finding a mate." It's interesting to see [illegible] but for a Scandinavian parliament like ours [illegible]. The scientist said

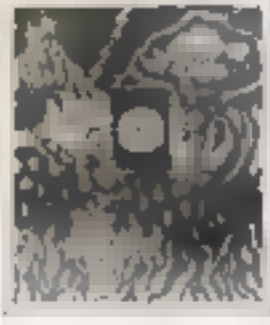
MAJOR EVENTS OF THE FUTURE REVEALED!

AN EXCLUSIVE HISTORICAL FIRST! HIS UNPUBLISHED PROPHECIES

DARE YOU READ THEM?



WAS HE A WIZARD? A SERVANT OF GOD? A SUPER PSYCHIC? A DEVIL WORSHIPPER? OR A BEING FROM ANOTHER PLANET



Nostradamus is credited with being the greatest prophet of modern man. Britain, Soviet Russia, Hollywood, television and Broadway all fall to the mighty conquest. Assassinations, in the Irish problem, predicted both World Wars, social battles, submarine attacks, Hitler's oppressions, and scores of men on the assassination of both Kennedys.

The evil behind the raping of the sanctity of the mother, the murder of unborn children, and all the rise and fall of dozens of lesser prophets has remained dark from mankind for centuries. Now, a religious historian writing the astounding 41 hidden quatrains - "Nostradamus, Today, not yet has Peace (Man-age) conquered ignorance and hatred like Nature? (The Shah) It plays the god and begins to dread (Khomeini) Everybody knows that the Apostate Illuminati started the revolution while exiled in France.

But the future Nostradamus predicts that Italy will be the end of the Middle East in the near future, during which the big powers will intervene. He even tells of the coming of the Anti-Christ and how he will rise and topple and conquer Europe, creating a brief period. He also speaks of a "religious war" and the Russians flexing to move the hands of 12. Peter to a date stone.

But, perhaps most astonishing of all, is the fact that Nostradamus has the exact date to help with the funeral arrangements!

THE MOST MYSTERIOUS MAN WHO EVER LIVED

Legend has it that Cassiopeia actually told Nostradamus precisely the special nights called the birth of Nostradamus. Because of these events, Nostradamus was considered to be a child of the devil. Nostradamus' birth itself was rather remarkable because Nostradamus' father's real name, presented her husband with a perfect baby in the 16th Century, perfect babies were almost unheard of. The normally rate was very high.

He had an incredible childhood. He was very young when he mastered several languages and advanced math. He became a renowned physician at 21. He walked among plague victims for months without catching the dread disease. With a shingle outside of Venice and reputation advanced in the world, he was also a sure worry of the entire Inquisition. Throughout Europe as a woman is beaten.

In the day Nostradamus made friends with kings and queens who were impressed by his ability to see into the future. Royalty came for and also to see in his presence an amazing array of what were rumored to share for them. Many were disappointed as Nostradamus knew well to address about Catholicism, Protestantism, and the consciousness that advanced among society's most prominent figures.

THE SECOND COMING & THE ANTICHRIST

Though Nostradamus' predictions abound as expert messenger he walked the stars of a vastly unknown way. He used a special device when walking. The device was probably a magic wand which he used to compose into a maze of lines and used at once. Nostradamus also mysteriously and himself a very religious person and while he was born a Jew, he later converted to the Catholic faith, allowing mystical answers were born from him. In his work, there is the

There are some who suppose that Nostradamus was a direct messenger of God, and that his predictions were divinely inspired. To give credence to this claim, the French poet who most influenced by a young Frenchman was a great village and got upon observing the moon dropped to the ground. Indeed why the fact does so. Nostradamus declared "Because I must have said these before my Maltreat." Years later the youth became the Pope under the title of Sixtus the Fifth.

Others believe that Nostradamus was a false prophet from the lands of germage + using from countless planets. All these theories are rendered to dated.

NOSTRADAMUS' [illegible] PREDICTIONS

A curious connection was been making the records of Europe where Nostradamus' predictions have been compared with events in recent months. Up till now none of this material has been released in the U.S.

Shortly before his death, Nostradamus apparently penned a series of predictions on stunning that no sooner than there published in any of his published works. Supposedly because he was afraid of the effect they might have. These predictions were attempted only to amplify and what damages mankind and many people and many more unmentioned events in the lifetimes of the seven whom Nostradamus died.

The 16th page of the newly discovered Nostradamus' quatrain "Century XII, Number 83". The story was supposedly written, published, was "Century XII, Number 82." The

- The destruction of the Catholic Church and the last Pope.
- The great earthquake which will kill many
- Wars in the streets of many great cities.
- Gold missing from Fort Knox

Indeed, no prophet had ever lived who knew more about the future than did Nostradamus. With the world's current state of affairs, assassinations, international tensions and the realization that there are the "Last Days" the time appears at you particularly to what nothing.

Mind-boggling discovery

Mummy proves Chinese beat Columbus to America by 800 years!

The discovery of a Chinese mummy in Peru proves that Asian ships sailed to the Americas 800 years before Europeans even thought about coming to the New World!

"The Spanish and the Portuguese think of themselves as the world's greatest early explorers but nothing could be further from the truth," Axel Kjaebel, the archaeologist, told reporters in Aarhus, Denmark.

By IRWIN FISHER

"The Chinese were centuries ahead of them. This startling proves that they had the ships, the intelligence, the courage and the will to reach South America in the year 700.

"The Spanish and Portuguese at that time still thought the world was flat. They were terrified to sail too far for fear of falling off the edge of the earth."

Dr. Kjaebel discovered the Chinese mummy at an archaeological dig east of Lima in April. The mummy is thought to be that of a man who died of a severe viral infection in his early 30s.

ORIENTAL MUMMY, along with the remains of two horses, a chariot and maps of China and Peru, was discovered at an archaeological site in South America

He was buried with the remains of two horses, a chariot and highly detailed maps of both China and Peru.

"It would appear that this young explorer had no intentions of sailing back to China," said the expert. "In fact there is some evidence to show that he actually tried to set himself up as king of Peru's Indian population.

"Bits of pottery found along with his body show Indian women bowing before an Oriental man on a throne."

The rise of South America's Inca empire was still hundreds of years away. But Dr. Kjaebel speculated that the people of the Inca civilization might have been extra by the Chinese explorers.

"This young man," he added, "just might have given South America the greatest civilization that it has ever known."

Dr. Kjaebel plans a return trip to Peru to search for more evidence of Oriental influence in the New World.

"We are particularly interested in finding one of the boats they used to cross the Pacific Ocean," explained the expert.

Singing telegram was a stickup

A bank robber with a flair for show biz pulled off one of the most bizarre heists ever when he showed up at a bank to deliver a singing telegram, gathered the tellers together and then robbed them.

The crook arrived at the Savings of America bank in Kansas City, Missouri, carrying a flower-and-balloon bouquet and requested that the staff gather together for his singing telegram.

Then the man pulled out a shoulder shotgun and ordered them to empty their cash drawers. He is still on the lam.

Company pays video whiz to play games

J.C. Appel has a dream job — he gets paid to play video games.

The 24-year-old Bellevue, Wash., man is the head game counselor for Nintendo of America Inc., maker of video games. J.C.'s job is to help buyers of the games to learn to play them better. And to prove to be able to advise J.C. and other counselors have to be masters of the games.

"It's definitely something I've always wanted to do," says J.C. of his play job. "I've dreamed and wished I could play video games and get paid for it."

Thanks to nine-to-six practice and his years of ball-playing skills, J.C. has learned to beat the 30 games Nintendo makes. His greatest feat is his victory in the boxing game.

"For the record, I'm one of the few people in the country to beat Mike Tyson," J.C. jests.

Ex-owners ruined by estate's evil forces

WILL MANSION'S CURSE TOPPLE TYCOON COUPLE?

MAGNIFICENT Dunnellen Hall, above, in posh Greenwich, Conn., is said to be haunted. Each of the mansion's previous owners has suffered crippling setbacks. The present residents, Leona and Harry Helmsley, left, have been indicted on 208 counts of tax evasion.

By RAPI KLIMOR

Billionaire real estate baron Harry Helmsley and his wife Leona have been indicted on tax evasion charges and some people believe their bad luck is part of the curse of Dunnellen Hall — the magnificent, English-style mansion they live in.

Inexplicably most of the owners of the $11 million plus estate in posh Greenwich, Conn., have lost their fortunes or died after moving into the bucolic 26-room, 14-bedroom mansion set on 29 wooded acres.

"It's kind of been bad luck for people who lived there," said Ben Tinari, chairman of Prudential Properties Inc., a Greenwich real estate firm that sells two-hundred-plus of Dunnellen Hall.

"In a way, the curse story is true. The only guy that came out while was Richard Treibach and he never lived there. But Jack O'Brien, his partner, did and a few years later, he died."

"The Helmsleys bought Dunnellen in 1983 for $11 million and since then have made costly additions including an indoor pool and a supersophisticated security system.

"They've done a lot of work there," said Reave. "My God, the place is a fortress. You walk on the grind and bells ring and lights go on. It's astonishing."

Recently, the bells rung for the Helmsleys when New York and federal grand juries indicted them on 208 counts of tax evasion. They were charged with fraudulently hiding their businesses for $4 million in personal expenses. Some $1 million of those expenses reportedly included the cost of Dunnellen Hall. But the bad luck experienced by the Helmsleys seems typical of the owners of Dunnellen Hall. Built in 1918 for $1 million by the president of American Tin Plate Co., it was given as a wedding gift to his daughter, who named the house after her mom Ella Dunn.

[illegible] of the mansion was in 1930 to Loring Washburn, president of a steel company. He had the house 13 years later due to financial troubles.

Other owners included Morgan Cooper of a magnificent collection of costly long-tail hunter paintings, he also inherited for Ferrid and later died.

● Oil tanker tycoon Karl O'Brien, a real estate speculator and his partner Treibach. Treibach escaped the curse, but he never lived there. O'Brien did and died.

● George Eberstadt Dodge, the sole company heiress and her husband Daniel Morgan a famous patriotic Morgan shot and killed a burglary climbing into the bedroom window of their Florida home. It was ruled justifiable homicide.

Years later, Morgan killed herself.

● Investor Jack Dick purchased Dunnellen from Mr. [illegible] Tikkers also was an owner and resident of Dunnellen Hall.

He lost much of his fortune in the 1970s OPEC oil embargo.

Escapee isn't slick enough!

Auto theft suspect Felipe Perez learned how elusive freedom can be when he smashed out of the jail cell, crept down a hallway — then got stuck halfway through a second-floor window, say cops.

Jailers in Los Angeles found Perez, 25, hanging half in and half out the window when they made their rounds the next morning.

Firemen rolled a ladder to the window and pulled pale Felipe free.

Divorce ceremonies take sting out of splitting up

By DEREK CLONTZ

More and more couples are staging marriage-in-reverse ceremonies to take the sting out of divorce!

Taking directions from a mediator, a parting husband and wife hold hands, thank each other for the good times they shared and agree to part as friends, often with a hug.

"They may say offensive things to each other at first but they usually end up holding each other in tears," said Sheila Davis, a divorce court officer in Birmingham, England.

"It helps them untie the emotional knot and makes them realize what a terrible step they are taking. I often end up crying as well."

"It would be a lovely custom to hold in church," she added, "but the Church is still very old-fashioned about divorce."

Mrs. Davis told the pain of her own divorce a few years ago and devised the marriage-in-reverse ceremony to help others overcome their bitterness. She conducts ceremonies in her office and begins by asking them to say "Goodbye."

Convicted DWI gets free ride

A judge refused to send a convicted drunk driver to jail because he couldn't find a security officer to lock the guy up!

"We waited for 15 minutes for security officers but none showed up," said Provincial Judge Lawrence DiCecco, of Toronto, Canada.

"Finally I said, 'I can't send this man to jail.' The man said, 'What am I supposed to do?' And I said, 'Sit home. I'm not going to sign the warrant of committal.'"

Judge DiCecco said the incident illustrated the problems courts face in the wake of security restraints.

"It's not up to my clerk to put handcuffs on criminals," he said.

The 3 Stooges are NOT dumb-heads!

Editors: I know you people have to sell papers to stay in business, but why do you have to do it by making fun of wonderful people like the Three Stooges?

In your May 17 edition, you took up an entire page saying how dumb the Stooges are and anybody who watches them is dumb, too. Well, I happen to love Larry, Moe and Curly. I think they are maybe the greatest entertainers of all time.

And I am NOT dumb.

I have a high school degree and I'm a licensed beautician.

So next time keep your stupid opinions to yourself.

P.D., New Orleans, La.

This just goes to show that even licensed beauticians can make mistakes. Read our story again — you'll see it's not your mother's fault — and give it another go. Maybe you'll find it's really Mamma Stooge's fault. — Editors

But don't worry, though — we're not the only ones who thinks the Three Stooges are the greatest entertainers of all time. Many of our readers feel the same way. — Editors

Cops shouldn't beat old lady dope user

Editors: I just read the story in your April 10 Weekly World NEWS about the lady with glaucoma who was growing marijuana for medicinal purposes. It was revolting how the police persecuted that lady for treating her illness. Do the police want that lady to go blind?

I, too, take narcotics for medicinal purposes. They help alleviate the severe depression and lack of energy from which I suffer.

Although my physician would not give me a prescription, I need my medication to do the simplest daily tasks, such as reading the stories in your fine publication.

The only difference between me and the lady in the story is I'm not into hanging out with dope dealers. I get my prescriptions filled through a large mail-order drug company.

Gardner: I get my prescriptions filled through a large mail-order drug company, too. Just like you, I need my medication to do the simplest daily tasks, such as reading the stories in your fine publication. Oops! I got my prescriptions filled through a large mail-order drug company, named Oscar Ole Wolf. It's time to take my daily dose of manliness. — R.A., Boomer Lit

OK, you know Oscar? We happen to know him, too. But he's not promotional — he's not undercover, right now. Hope that we've helped open — Editors

What happened to the French playboy?

Editors: I love your paper because the stories you run aren't just how crazy the Loch Ness monster really are.

I especially liked the story about Leslie Lavaille and Sarah Krueger, the two women who had a knock-down, drag-out brawl when both of them showed up at the church to marry the same man (Weekly World NEWS, May 3).

I'd sure love a follow-up on that one. Did Philippe Rinn, the dashing French playboy, wind up marrying one of the girls? What's he doing now?

I'm fat, failed and 40, but I'm looking for love

Send letters to Dear Dotti, Weekly World NEWS, 600 East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462

Dear Dotti: I've always had a weight problem and everyone tells me about it, so I'm very self-conscious about my big body. Because I'm so fat, I've never really had a boyfriend. Now I'm middle-aged and in a panic because I want a guy to look at me and say, "Ummm."

I won't go anywhere in public any more because every guy says, "Hey, Big Momma," when I go by so I can't even try for a date at all. All of the places my girlfriends go, I go as far looking for a guy where I work, but have been in the storeroom where the customers won't have to see me.

I talked about my weight with my sister-in-law but she only says she has gotten down this big, and when I tried talking to my mom, she just said she was bigger than me. So I feel that I'm a hero alone person and I need help. — Miss Piggy, Oklahoma

Dear Miss Piggy, Good news, Sweetie. Top docs have now officially pronounced it not true naughty thoughts and gobbling out a sluggish metabolism. So let's go for the Big and Gorgeous Look.

Now I'm with a wonderful man but I worry me that he always wants to do those wild things in bed and it scares me. He thinks I'm strange. But not wanting to do what he wants me to.

Answer: I am the first man I pop on all weekly ads and he thinks he's hot. I really want to go with him, but in the process I don't want to hurt the man I'm living with. — Double Trouble, Ohio

Dear Double Trouble, Somebody's gonna get hurt in this triangle, honey. Papers aren't meant for two. Why don't you just sit down and read a wonderful sex-education book?

Will my little grandsons grow up to be sissies?

Dear Dotti: You really got to the heart of the matter, so you'd better tell me straight or this is my daughter-in-law making sissies out of our little grandsons by letting them sleep in her bed with her! — Grandpa Cop, retired in Sparta, New Jersey

Dear Grandpa, Concerned. Let's just say she's not making softhearted wimpettes, although certainly little girls out of the house-trained bedtime.

My boyfriend's got some weird ideas about love

Dear Dotti: I was a man where I work with a married man. He told me he was separated from his wife and was getting a divorce. He said he was in love with me and wanted to marry me. He bought me a ring and I thought I was in love.

Then I found out he was still living with his wife. He said he was going to get a divorce, but I don't believe him. I'm so confused. I don't know what to do. I love him, but I don't want to be a home wrecker. — Confused, Texas

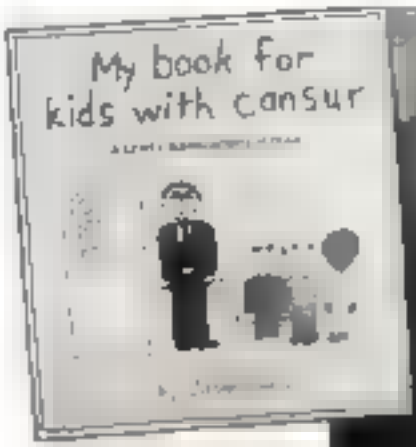
Dear Confused, Sounds like you've been had, honey. Don't be a fool. Get out of there and find a man who's free to love you.

I'll keep my 18-year-old sweetie-pie out of jail

Dear Dotti: I am living with the parents of my baby girl that almost a year ago I got pregnant. What to do?

We all had three choices: have the baby, have an abortion or put it up for adoption. We decided to have the baby. Now I'm glad we did. She is the most beautiful baby girl in the world. I love her very much.

Now I'm 18 years old and I'm in jail for a crime I committed when I was 17. I'm scared to death. I'm afraid I'll never get out of jail. I'm afraid I'll never see my baby girl grow up. I'm afraid I'll never get to hold her in my arms again. I'm afraid I'll never get to tell her how much I love her. I'm afraid I'll never get to tell her how much I miss her. I'm afraid I'll never get to tell her how much I want to be with her. I'm afraid I'll never get to tell her how much I want to be a part of her life. I'm afraid I'll never get to tell her how much I want to be a part of her life. I'm afraid I'll never get to tell her how much I want to be a part of her life



CANCER patient Jason Gass, age 10, right, wrote a book for other magic youngsters like himself

By DICK DONOVAN

Cancer victim Jason Lisec's mom read him a book written by another cancer kid who died before the book was finished — and it made Jason very angry.

"Why does everyone who has written me in these books" 8-year-old Jason demanded to know.

Well, now there is a book whose everyone doesn't die and it's full of hope, help and humor and it was written by Jason. He called it My book for kids with cansur.

The words, the spelling and the punctuation are Jason's, simple and straight from the heart of a gutsy kid who has faced the frightening reality of "hevy mutherapy," "tumers," "radiashun" and "meddsin that drips out of a needle in your arm called an IV or a shot in your back called a spinal."

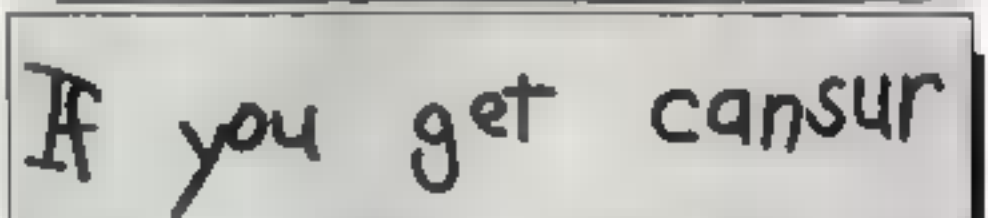
And in his little-boy way, Jason gets his message across to other kids who are now going through what he did before he licked his own "cansur." In the book he writes:

"If you get cansur dont be scared cause lots of people get over having cansur and grow up without dying like President Reagan and me."

"Sometime hevy mutherapy can make you sick and you throw up. Sometimes you lose your hair from it but you can wear hats if it bothers you."

"When your bald you dont have to worry about getting shampoo in your eyes."

"If you can find it get a poster that says Help me to remember Lord that nothing is gonna happen today that you and me can't handle together. Then hang it in your room and read it at night when your scared."



Brave cancer boy's book of hope

Jason, who lives in Wantagh, Long Island, with his family — parents Craig and Geralyn, brothers Tim and Adam and baby sister Melissa — was diagnosed in 1984 as having Burkitt's lymphoma, a fast-growing cancer common to Africa but rare in America. He had a 10-inch tumor in his tummy, and tumors in his mouth, his head and two on his right kidney. His mom and dad were told if chemotherapy didn't work, they and would be dead in two weeks.

But Jason made it through those first terrifying two weeks. There came a month of radiation, surgery to remove the stomach tumor and 22 agonizing months of chemotherapy every two weeks in the Mayo Clinic, a three-hour drive from his house.

Now, at the age of 10, Jason has been cancer-free for just over two years, and his prognosis is excellent.

Nevertheless, Jason must live with the grim reality that someday more tumors may crop up. In fact, he dedicated his book to Sister Margaret, a nun, "cause we're both waiting to see if our cancers come back."

He gets that point across beautifully in his book.

"Sometimes even if you do everything just like everybody else a peice of your cansur can break off and go to your lungs and grow there. If the drs can't get it out then your probly gonna die when your a kid.

"My mom said when her and Tom was baby's in her stomick we liked it in there so good the dr had to give my mom a shot to make us come out. But now that I'm outside I wouldnt never want to go back.

"She says going to heaven is probly like that. Once we get there we won't want to come back here. We'r just scared about going to heaven because we never been there."

Naps can reduce heart risks

If you want to reduce your risk of having a heart attack, just relax and take a nap, say experts who found that people who take an afternoon snooze are healthier.

The new study by Greek scientists concluded that you can reduce your risk of heart disease by 30 percent simply by taking a 30-minute nap every day.

"Siesta is a healthy habit," said Dr. Dimitrios Trichopoulos, head of preventative medicine at Athens Medical School.

Researchers studied 47 patients with a history of heart trouble and 67 subjects who had no history of heart problems. After making adjustments for smoking, high blood pressure, diet, blood cholesterol and personality types, scientists

The bridesmaid was a real bow-wow!

By JOE BERGER

Starry-eyed bride Elaine Alexander is so mad about her mutts Monty and Tara that when she got hitched he hounds stood right by her side — as her pups and bridesmaids!

"It was absolutely the weirdest wedding I've ever been involved in," said county registrar Patricia Cooper who pronounced Elaine and her lovestruck Les Smith man and wife in Birmingham, England.

"Those dogs were cute but it was a little strange to have three more in the entire wedding party."

Monty the springer spaniel sported a puffy maroon suit, a velvet bow tie and a haughty look in his eye.

And Tara the German shepherd made a hauntingly beautiful bridesmaid in her necklace of pink and white carnations.

...elated Elaine, 23. "After all, these guys are my best friends in the whole world."

Later the animal-crazy lady let new hubby Les, 27, know just where the pampered pooches fit in her life — and just where he stands, too.

"My dogs come first — even before Les," she said. "Les understands that they've been with me a lot longer than he has."

The wagging groom, in his tuxedo decorator, seemed resigned to his role as runners-up for his lady's love.

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

Medical science advancement

SWEDEN—Medical researchers at the University of Kuopio in Finland have discovered (accidentally) a new weight-loss formula. The new discovery enables an overweight individual to lose pounds and keep loose without dieting or exercise.

Scientists made the discovery while examining the hormones in people cholesterol. In a study of test group, cholesterol levels remained unchanged but the dieters were astonished to find that every patient who used the formula lost weight. The published report of the study stated, "A highly significant decrease of body weight was seen" in persons who received the formula.

The formula was then tested in Sweden at Sahlgrens Hospital, University of Lindeberg. Again, all patients lost a substantial amount of weight even though they did not change their eating habits. The report of the study, published in the British Journal of Nutrition, stated: "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits." One patient in the study lost more than 30 pounds.

According to one industrial source, the active ingredient contains 100% natural botanical source and contains no drugs or stimulants. When taken before mealtime it binds with the food you eat and "ties up" calories, preventing them absorption.

A significant portion of the calories ingested eventually pass through the digestive system undetected. The body has to get energy to replace the lost calories, and starts to burn stored fat. The result is rapid body weight loss. Extensive clinical tests have verified the safety of this formula for long term use.

The formula is marketed in tablet form in the United States under the trade name Cal-Ban 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida, has exclusive North American distribution rights. A spokesman for the firm said, "Hundreds of people who have lost up to 10 pounds the first week and as much as 20 lbs or more people overall with Cal-Ban 3000. This is a golden opportunity for people who are plagued by fat and cellulite that they can't seem to lose by conventional methods."

Cal-Ban 3000 is reasonably priced at $29.95 for a 1-week supply and $59.95 for a 4-week supply. Postage and handling is $3. To insure fastest service, orders are accepted by toll-free phone only. VISA, MasterCard, Amex and C.O.D. orders are accepted. C.O.D. is extra $2.00 extra. Orders may be placed by calling Anderson Pharmacy TOLL-FREE 1-800-228-2121. During this special phone order promotion purchasers of a 4-week supply of Cal-Ban 3000 will receive, absolutely free, a beautiful 24" double strand necklace of sparkling Chinese Fresh pearls.

gery offers new hope 'ugl ling' girl

All I want is a normal face

By ROSE GRADY

The miracle of modern surgery is slowly transforming tragic "ugly duckling" Michelle Willis into something she never dared to dream she could be — a beautiful swan!

And after years of work, doctors are turning her into a 'beautiful swan'

NOW Michelle is engaged to be married to Michael Potts, right. That's her mom Linda and dad Thomas in the background.

And today, 21-year-old Michelle, who used to look in the mirror and cry her heart out because she believed she was too ugly for anyone to love, is engaged to be married!

Michelle, who lives with her mother in Sunderland, England was born with only half a face. She had only one eye, half a skull and she was missing one cheek. Had a crushed cheek a bent nose and one ear was higher than the other.

"When she was born, the nurses wouldn't let me look at her for three days," declared mom Linda. She recalled: "They kept a blanket covering one side of her face.

"And when I did peek at her I gasped and thought: 'How thing can't be mine.'

"I wanted to grab her away. But then I hugged her close and her tiny fingers gripped mine, and I whispered: 'You're mine, and I love you.'

And from that heart-tugging moment on, the courageous battle to transform an ugly duckling into a beautiful swan was on.

Here are just some of the amazing operations ugly Michelle endured:

- A piece of her skull was cut out and removed to replace the missing half of her forehead.
- Her eyebrow was moved from left to right and her teeth were wired shut for weeks to make her face round.
- Bone from her hip was removed to build a cheek.
- Ligaments from her right ear were used to build an eyelid over the gaping eye socket on the right side of her face.
- Ligaments from her left ear were used to make her a nose.
- Tissue from her tummy was used to fill out her cheek.

And for many of the operations the flesh from her entire face was cut away from ear-to-ear and peeled off like a glove to enable surgeons to perform their miraculous work.

Was all the pain and suffering worth it? Michelle thinks it was. But she doesn't really want to be a standout beauty.

"All I want is an ordinary face," she explained. "One that can be lost in the crowd. I don't want to look like a film star . . . just somebody that people won't bother to look at twice."

Dog puts the bite on lottery winner!

Super lucky Stephen Sullivan had no sooner won $2 million in a lottery than somebody put the bite on him — his pet poodle.

The crazed pooch went for the left calf of Sullivan's leg when he was spoken to long his wife and tell her the good news.

The couple have played the exact six numbers in the New York lotto for four years.

Gramps: Grouchy telephone operators ignored my pleas for help!

A frail 74-year-old man said he spent eight hours lying helpless on the floor while cranky telephone operators refused to help.

Canadian officials said the trouble started when Leopold Grimard, who has Parkinson's disease and who also wears a pacemaker, dropped his cane and fell as he groped for it in the dark.

"The only thing I could do was use the phone and I dialed the operator in the dark," said Grimard, who makes his home in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Canada.

When Grimard told the operator he had an emergency, she gave him another number to call for help, ignoring his desperate explanation that he couldn't write down the number or dial it in the dark.

At dawn Grimard gave up trying to get any assistance from the operator and started dialing numbers at random. Finally he reached a sympathetic woman who contacted the supervisor of Grimard's apartment building.

Now Grimard is advertising in a local newspaper in an attempt to locate the woman who was responsible for rescuing him.

"I'm very thankful to get in touch with her," he said. "She was good enough to put up with me and to help."

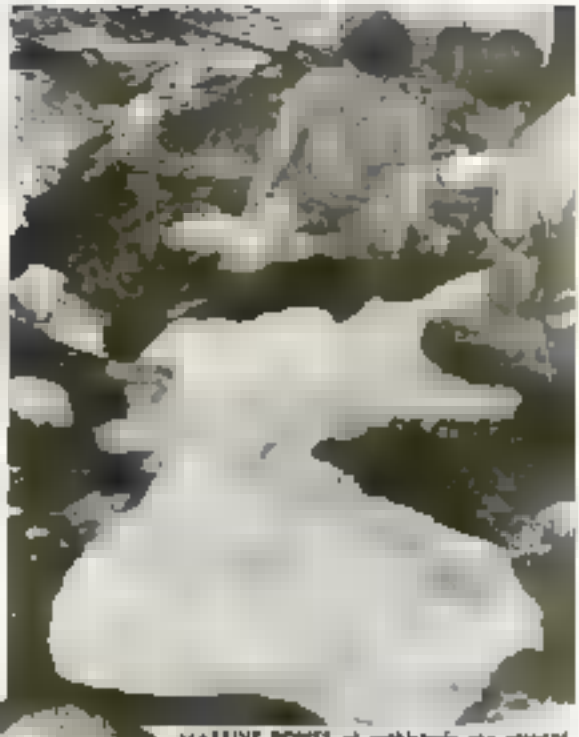
Scientists unearth massive monster from the dawn of time

Bones of 15-ton sea creature found in Alabama



MASSIVE BONES of prehistoric sea serpent are examined and covered with plaster by University of Alabama scientists at the dig site

By DICK DONOVAN

Scientists in Alabama are feverishly digging up the fossilized skeleton of a prehistoric sea serpent so incredibly huge it could swallow a herd of cows — in one gulp!

The amazing creature has been positively identified as a monasaur — a beast twice the size of the largest dinosaur that vanished off the face of the earth some 70 million years ago.

"It was the lord of the sea and there is nothing like it alive today," declared Robert T. Bakker, curator of the University of Colorado Museum.

Bakker is one of the noted scientists and researchers working the site in Lowndes County, about 30 miles southwest of Birmingham.

The serpent is estimated to be 60 feet long with a 6-foot-long head and a jaw so huge it has two hinges. It is believed to be the largest fossilized sea serpent ever unearthed anywhere in the world.

Experts say it probably weighed up to 15 tons, about twice the size of tyrannosaurus rex, the largest dinosaur known to have roamed the planet.

"If a tyrannosaurus rex were dropped into the water where one of these was, it would have more than had its hands full," Bakker said. "This beast could have swallowed a Hereford steer whole."

He said the area in Lowndes County where the fossils are now being unearthed was about 100 feet below the surface of the sea when monasaurs ruled the deep.

He said monasaurs have been uncovered in other parts of the world. "But the largest we know of were in the 40-foot range," he added.

The excavation team hopes to recover all of the fossilized bits and pieces so they can be reconstructed.

It's so big it could eat cows like popcorn!

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION of the gigantic sea serpent as compared to a human diver, a horse and an elephant.

AMAZING fossilized skeleton indicates that the creature's head was at least 6 feet long, says this scientist.

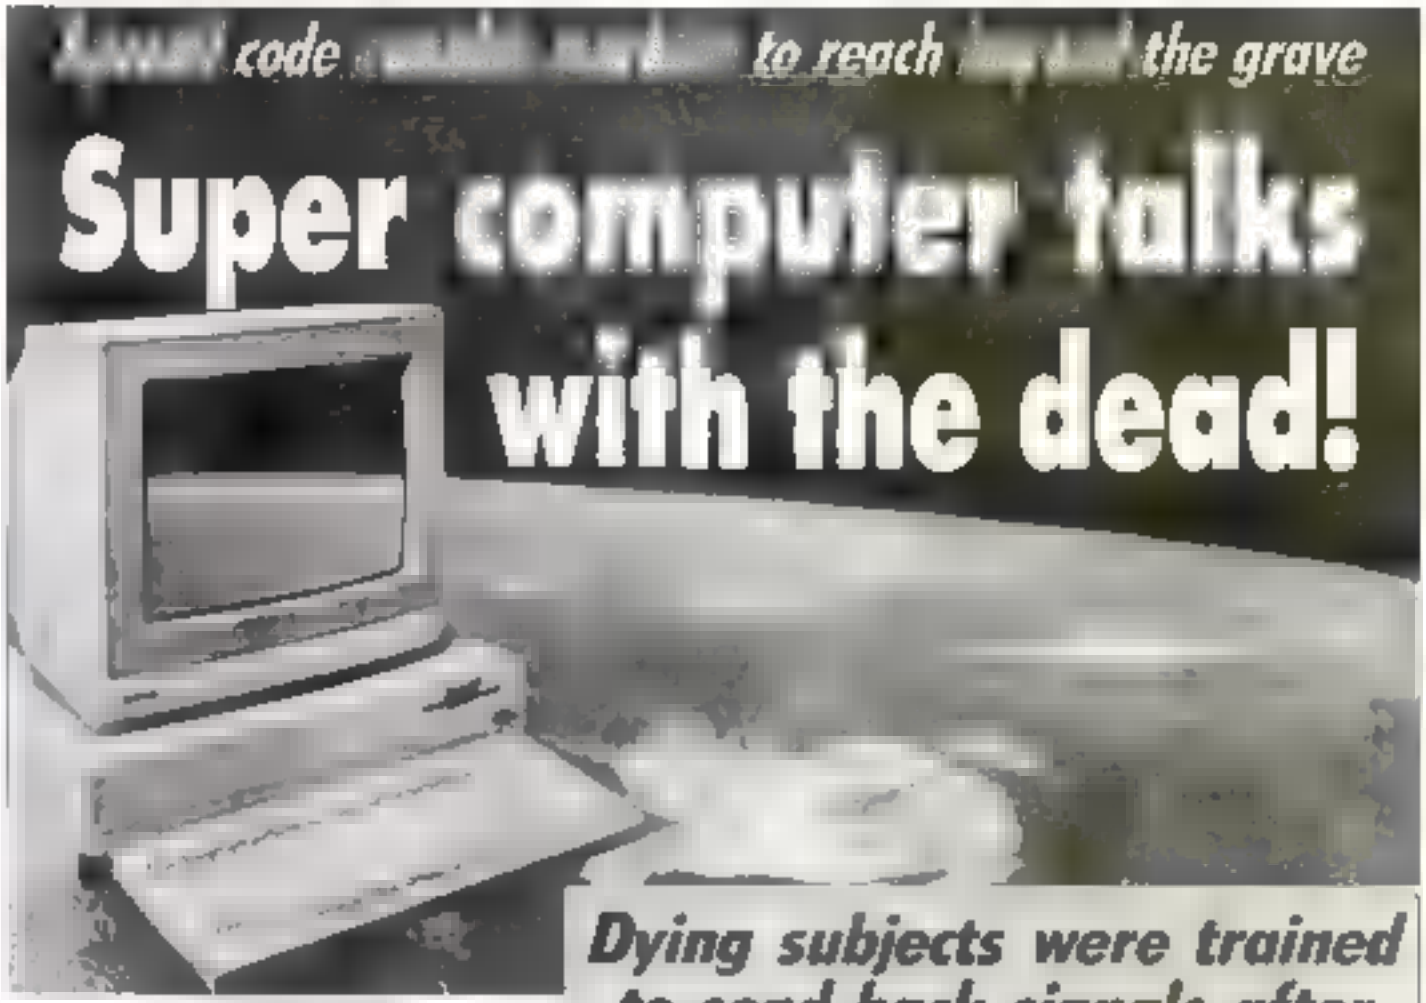
Super computer talks with the dead!



Dying subjects were trained to send back signals after they passed on to afterlife

By BEATRICE OLSTIN

A unique computer has helped scientists achieve an astounding breakthrough in life-after-death research — by picking up signals from a man who died and recording his messages from beyond the grave!

Researchers at the University of Tashkent in the Soviet Union have successfully intercepted more than a dozen messages from the man, whom they call "Comrade K," according to an article in the publication The Paranormal Studies. The dead man describes the afterlife as "joyous, peaceful and complete."

"In 10 years of research we worked with 37 terminally ill subjects, training them in a specially-designed computer code," wrote Dr Pyotr Sukov, head of the four-man team of research psychologists. "We also developed a highly sensitive computerized machine which responds to the slightest changes in electrical fields. The machine was designed to accept the code and reflect it in letters, as a typewriter would.

"Thirty-six subjects passed on without a successful contact. But last month Comrade K contacted — and spoke to us from the afterlife."

Sukov says that in data much of the communication with the dead man did not contain the computer code and problems with sending signals to the machine in the university research lab. Comrade K told scientists that he was able to signal them for several weeks because of a faulty research design.

The dead man said he changed his method of transmitting signals — which involved a process resembling mental telepathy — and broke through the barrier at last.

"It would be impossible to put into words what we felt when we saw the first transmission come up on the computer screen," wrote Sukov, 45, a specialist in extraordinary phenomena. "It was too good to be believed — some of us feared it was a joke played by one of our colleagues.

"Eventually, however, Comrade K identified himself by means of a cell sign known only to myself and one of my fellow researchers. We know without a doubt that it is the dead man who is communicating with us."

Sukov and his colleagues have questioned Comrade K — a physicist who died of cancer at the age of 39 — and the fact they have constructed the first scientifically verified description of life after death.

"Apparently death is a pleasant process leading to an existence in which all sensations of pain, anxiety, sadness and so forth, cease to be," Sukov said. "Comrade K tells us that he is surrounded by light and warmth and a feeling of overwhelming love and well-being.

"Although he left behind two small children and a devoted wife, he says he does not worry about them in the least. 'The worst that can happen to a person on earth is death and I now know death to be a wonderful thing,' he told us. 'I am with my family constantly as though I were alive and living with them,' he said. 'Eventually I know they will be joining me here. Nothing else really matters.'"

Sukov and his fellow researchers have faithfully recorded every word of Comrade K's messages and plan to publish a transcript of the dead man's communications next March.

The messages continue to arrive on a daily basis, although the dead man has indicated that he plans to stop the communications eventually.

"I have reached you because I wanted badly to reassure the living that death is nothing to fear," the man told Sukov recently. "When I have made that clear to you I will feel my work is done."

7-month-old baby beats up his dad!

A battered dad was admitted to the hospital in agony after taking a painfully powerful punch to his left eye — from his 7-month-old son.

"The doctors and nurses thought it was hilarious when I told them my baby son walloped me," said Graham Bell, 36. "It was quite a whack. My eye closed totally in minutes."

Graham was helping his wife Linda put tiny Stephen to bed at their home in Slough, England, when the tough little toddler lashed out.

"I was up half the night as the pain got worse," he said. "I was in agony and there was nothing else for it but to go to the hospital."

The suffering dad went to the same hospital where his superstar son has had surgery and still undergoes treatment for club feet.

Doctors treated the father's badly bruised eye.

"They Didn't Think The Children And I Could Drill A Water Well."

— Mary Hickman

But, seeing is believing. Thank you, DeepRock.

MY FRIENDS THOUGHT I had lost my mind. The idea that the children and I could drill a water well by ourselves sounded like an impossible dream. Moreover, we had to have water for our large garden and farm.

AN EASY WAY

Then I saw an advertisement that claims that you can drill your own well with a Hydro-Drill and save a lot of money. I had never even watched a well being drilled, much less drilled one myself, so I assumed it would be difficult. But they offered a free brochure, so I sent for it.

When the information came, I was delighted to find it contained a wealth of material. In addition to pictures and descriptions of the equipment, there was a very informative booklet about drilling your own water well.

I was impressed with the information package, but I wondered what we would do if we ran into a problem while we were drilling. Then I thought—well, they have a free consulting service with a toll-free telephone. Any company that is willing to go out on a limb like that, knowing they'll get calls from all over, must have a lot of confidence in their product. So I took a deep breath, crossed my fingers, and ordered a Hydro-Drill.

TWO SURPRISES

Much to my amazement, the Hydro-Drill arrived from the factory in Alabama in just 7 days. That was my first surprise.

My second surprise was the simplicity and ease of operating the Hydro-Drill. The kids wanted to operate it, but there really wasn't much for them to do. There isn't any big crank and it's more like play than work. Best of all, we were drilling exactly where I wanted the well.

SPARKLING, CLEAR WATER

The biggest thrill came when we hit water. It was such an exhilarating experience. I can hardly describe it. We had drilled down into the earth and found sparkling, clear, delicious water! It was such fun, the kids are eager to drill some more wells.

I want to congratulate my friends are getting caught up in [illegible]. When we started, they thought I was a [illegible] idea. Now they've got the well drilling bug and I [illegible] all my Hydro-Drill as a rentals.

IF YOU ASK ME,

To anyone considering drilling a Hydro-Drill well, my advice is this: Don't let a challenge like that go to waste! It's an exciting and satisfying experience. If you ask me if I think it's worth doing, I'll say, "Yes, I do. I really do!"

Robber armed with a needle — and AIDS-infected blood

A fiendish armed robber is terrorizing folks in Tacoma, Wash., with a bizarre new deadly weapon — a syringe filled with AIDS-infected blood.

Store clerks terrorized by fiendish crook

Three store clerks have turned over their money to the creepy crook rather than risk slow death from his horrifying new twist in the world of knavery.

"I've read of other instances where people alleged to have AIDS have threatened police officers," said Tacoma police spokesman Dick Larsen. "But we're not sure armed robbery by syringe as this area before.

"We're talking it very seriously."

The bandit threatened a convenience store clerk, displaying the red fluid in the syringe was AIDS blood. The clerk gave him $150 rather than get stuck with the needle.

Similar threats were made to clerks at another convenience store and gas station. Again the crook fled with their money.

Cops believe the same punk robbed a combination gas station and store, but told the clerk the syringe was loaded with poison.

"We don't know whether the man has AIDS or not, but we're containing people not to take a chance," said Officer Larsen.

"AIDS can be transmitted through serious hypodermic needles.

"The syringe is a deadly weapon, especially if it is filled with AIDS-infected blood," Larsen added.

Reptile rustlers were nice guys

Thoughtful thieves rustled a herd of reptiles and bugs from a pet store — then pitched up a supply of disgusting critters for them to eat.

The crooks broke into Grandmaster Pet Imports of West Haven, Conn., lifting 30 geckos, two emerald tree boas, eight iguanas, 10 tarantulas and 12 scorpions, police say.

But fearing that their loot would starve to death, the heisty burglars stole them a food supply — 30 rats, 250 mice and dozens of bugs of most variety.

Clothes-minded neighbors nix man's nude yard work

A judge says Robert Norton is a fine citizen, but he still sentenced Norton to 30 days in jail — for doing his yard work in the nude.

The sentence came after the 65-year-old Pekin, Ill., man was convicted of working outdoors in his birthday suit — for the sixth time.

Judge Joe B. McDade said the oldster isn't a criminal in the normal sense of the word. But he said Norton has "one annoying habit" that alarms his neighbors.

"Even though I sympathize with you, I cannot condone your obnoxious rejection of your fellow citizens."

Clerk uses broom to chase robber

By JOE BERGER

When a robber broke a billy club over Judy Setty's head, the convenience store clerk chased the crook out the door with a broom.

The hoodlum walked into the Jay Food Store in Ocala, Fla., and broke a jar of pickled eggs, cops said. When the clerk leaned over to clean up the mess, the punk clobbered her with the club and headed for the cash register.

But Judy, stunned and bleeding, grabbed a broom and set out after the guy.

The terrified laugh ran out the door. The clerk was treated for head injuries.

Teacher charged with 8 DWIs!

A high school English instructor has been charged with drunk driving eight times in 3½ years — but court records show that he's never even been fined.

Prosecutors in El Paso, Tex., haven't forgotten the charges against Curtis Burns, 41. They blame the delays on overloaded court dockets. A trial date has finally been set for the teacher. Prosecutors plan to consolidate the eight charges and ask for a two-year prison term and $2,000 fine for each arrest.

ENRAGED enemy star Francine Bahr used her famous helmet to match the movie hype Krenn a lesson

Stunned audience sees 300 pounds of fury charge across stage

By LAUREL ROWE

OPERA SINGER GORES DIRECTOR

Thundering, 300-pound soprano Francine Bahr got licked off in the middle of an opera performance, charged across the stage like an enraged rhino — and gored her director with the horned helmet on her head!

"She just stopped singing, put her head down and came at me snorting like some kind of wild animal," dazed director Sunny Kreier told reporters from his hospital bed in Stuttgart, West Germany.

"I tried to kind of dance aside like a matador. But she got me with that horn and nearly ripped my insides out.

"She was a madwoman. I think she truly wanted to kill me — and she almost did."

Fat Francine, 30, was charged with assault in the bizarre attack, marking the second time she's landed in hot water in little over a year.

Late in 1988 the wide-bodied warbler toppled off the stage while trying to hit high C and crushed unlucky violinist Peter Hoff like a bug, leaving Peter, 70, suffered a broken elbow and wrist, a wrenched neck and a concussion. He filed a $1 million suit claiming the songbird's bulk flattened his musical career. The case of the diva's dive is still pending.

In the latest incident, Francine's amateur opera troupe was bellowing and bawling through its version of Wagner's Lohengrin when the king-size soprano spotted something that got her dander up.

And he was holding his nose and laughing," she recalled. "He didn't think I could see him but I could, and I was furious.

"I mean, how would you feel if you were singing your heart out in front of 2,000 people and your director was holding his nose?

"I said to myself, 'I'm going to get that little creep.' I lowered the helmet with the horns on my head, as I just went for him. He tried to get out of the way but I drove that thing into his side real good. He screamed and started bleeding like a stuck pig.

"It felt so good I was still laughing when they dragged me off to jail."

Some courtgoers figured the charges of the ruby-gooly prima donna was all part of the show until they heard the punctured director's cries of anguish and saw blood flowing onto the stage.

"I thought that part was wonderful," said factory hand Helmut Draider. "My wife dragged me down to see that thing and when the fat lady stuck that guy, that was the only interesting thing I'd seen all night. Then they called off the rest of the opera. It was wonderful."

Tiny village may hold key to heart disease cure

Scientists around the world are predicting a cure for heart disease following the discovery of a rare body protein in an isolated group of villagers that is able to gobble up cholesterol deposits in veins and arteries.

By SUSAN JAMISON

The amazing protein has been found only in the mountain hamlet of Limone in northern Italy among 300 or so of its inhabitants. Thanks to the rare protein, many citizens of Limone live well into their 100s.

New researchers have announced they expect to have an artificial version of the protein available by the end of the year — a breakthrough which could mean the beginning of the end of coronary disease.

"This is an exciting discovery of major importance to the medical world," said Professor Cesare Sirtori of Milan University in Italy. "The protein — called A1 Milano — is a super scavenger protein which attacks cholesterol."

Rare protein found that eats cholesterol

The miracle protein was discovered quite by accident when a Limone man — railroad worker Bilbino Degnoli — was admitted to a hospital in Milan with a stomach disorder.

Blood tests revealed that the 47-year-old man had high levels of cholesterol in his blood, but no evidence of fatty deposits in his heart or circulatory system. What's more the man's heart and blood vessels were in amazingly good condition for a man his age.

Further tests revealed the presence of a strange new protein in Degnoli's blood, a scavenger that eliminated cholesterol deposits from the man's system. Examination of Degnoli's relatives in Limone confirmed that the protein was inherited — the result of a mutation thought to have occurred about 300 years ago.

Thanks to the wonder protein, Limone has about twice the normal number of people over 80. A high percentage of residents live into their 90s and 100s.

"The only people I have to treat for heart complaints are the tourists," said the village doctor, Antonio Carrone.

In the months since the special A1 Milano protein was discovered, researchers in the United States and Italy have been trying to recreate the substance in the laboratory. Recently they announced that a man-made version of the protein will be perfected by the end of the year with clinical trials on human beings in the next two or three years.

"The big challenge of the 1990s is to remove cholesterol plaque in the arteries," said Dr. Sirtori. "not just lower cholesterol in the blood which drugs are already doing."

Russian coward hides in cellar since WW2

By KASAN DUNN

A Soviet army deserter who hid in a cellar for 44 years to avoid arrest says he shouldn't be punished because he was "born scared!"

"I wanted to fight, I tried to fight, but I just couldn't bring myself to do it," Ivan Kondratyenko, 66, told Moscow's Krasnaiaya Gazeta newspaper.

"I love my country and would do anything I could to help her," he added. "The one thing I couldn't do was fight for her.

"I was too frightened. I was born scared."

Police found Kondratyenko cowering in the corner of his dark, 12 by 12 cellar while investigating a fire in Oktyabrskoye, a village near Kiev, in January, said the newspaper.

Incredibly, he fled to the cellar when he was a strapping soldier of 18 — but emerged frail, sickly and silver-haired, aged 66.

"The best years of my life are in that cellar," said Kondratyenko, who is free while authorities decide whether to charge him with the capital crime of desertion.

Soviet deserter in World War II hid for 44 years in wife's cellar

light of day, even just for a little while," he continued. "But I couldn't let anyone know I was alive.

"Then they might have known that I was a deserter."

In fact, Kondratyenko deserted his post with the Soviet army in 1941, but later set up house with a widow under German occupation.

When the village was liberated by the advancing Soviet army in 1943, he was given a chance to redeem himself and rejoined the army.

But Kondratyenko continued to hide out, leaving off the intrigue when his wife married as a factory worker. The old man's sons told police they begged their dad to give himself up but he steadfastly refused.

He whiled away the hours reading and playing checkers by himself, only occasionally leaving the cellar prison to stretch his legs at night.

"I am embarrassed for myself and my family," said Kondratyenko, who is now divorced again. This time he married in secret and began his long sojourn in the cellar of his wife's home. Before the war's end the couple had conceived two children.

"I am sorry and am tortured with this.

"I don't want to die for something I did 44 years ago," he said.

[illegible] hairstylist, had the winning ticket in Saskatchewan's monthly 6/49 lottery draw.

"I couldn't wait for Georgie to call so I could tell him the good news," Krystal, 31, told The NEWS.

"He told me he intended to put the money in a Swiss bank account. When I insisted my half stay in Canada, he said I was not entitled to half — that he intended to pay off my car, buy me a few presents, but ultimately the entire winnings would be under his control."

And when Georgie said their relationship was not worth $250,000, heartbroken Krystal instructed her lawyer

Krystal said Georgie, 31, picked the numbers and she bought the ticket. Her lawyer and Krystal bought the ticket in Georgie's behalf.

When news of the lottery split over money made the news, Krystal said her life became a nightmare.

Rather than see their romantic personal life go public in a greedy court fight, Krystal said she offered her ex-fiance $150,000 and he accepted.

"I hope with his extra share of the $250,000 he takes the fastest plane out of Saskatoon and Canada and never returns," she said. "It's a hard pill to swallow for a romantic to end. Yes, I'm heartbroken. I'm sad and distressed."

HEARTBROKEN Krystal Lawrie was looking forward to marrying the man of his dreams until they won a big lottery payoff.

Absentminded sky diver forgot his chute twice

A sky diver who jumped from a plane without a parachute almost made the same mistake earlier in the day, a federal investigator reports.

Walter Hughes said absentminded Ivan McClure, 28, fell 10,000 feet to his death on April 2 in Raleigh, N.C., on his third jump of the day.

"There was no problem with the first time," said Hughes of the Federal Aviation Administration. "On the second he didn't get to put on his chute but one of the other parachutists brought it to his attention before [illegible] boarded the plane."

Jilted Rambo kills ex-girlfriend in his assault on hospital

Jilted David Jenkins shot dead his childhood sweetheart in a hospital emergency room — after a cop assigned to protect the girl allowed him to pass.

Pretty Carolyn Mylund's cold-blooded murder came only moments after she had told her worried mom, "If someone doesn't stop him, I'll end up on a morgue slab."

That prediction came true in May 1987 when David burst into the emergency room at Lister Hospital in Stevenage, England, and shot Carolyn at point-blank range before the horrified eyes of her mom.

The bereaved parent — who fainted beneath a real-life Rambo — admitted the days after receiving he had attempted to turn fate into her own life. He has just been sentenced to life in prison.

In an incredible police blunder, the 24-year-old barmaid had been rushed to the hospital after David stormed her home and stabbed her with a big carving knife as she slept. A police constable was assigned to stand guard near the room where Carolyn was waiting for treatment.

. . . and cops take blame!

When David, 23, showed up at the hospital, he was dressed from head to toe in black, had a bandolier of 30 cartridges slung Rambo-style across his chest and a shotgun hidden in a bag of his jeans. Despite his appearance, the constable let David pass. Moments later, he shot Carolyn in the chest.

The murder climaxed a love affair that began when they were both 16. They had a stormy, on-and-off romance, but eventually became engaged. Then Carolyn made a clean split from him in May 1986. But David carried a torch for Carolyn.

Twice in the two weeks before the murder, David was jailed but released on bond after assaulting Carolyn and her dad and threatening her with death.

Be wary of an unusual offer that may be presented to you in the week ahead.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

All signs indicate that your luck is about to improve dramatically. Make use of your cunning good humor by taking a few calculated risks in order to get ahead.

Fine impressions may prove to be significant at this time. Follow your instincts.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

While vexing questions centre on a long-term relationship, an exciting change in your personal life looms on the horizon. There may be a new you crying.

The tide of your luck is favorable. Don't be namby-pamby about venturing out into unfamiliar waters. But for goodness' sake, don't allow your Gemini irresponsibility to sidetrack your destiny!

Something delightful may embrace you this week. Play your cards right and you'll be rewarded.

CANCER

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

A long-standing situation finally comes to a head after years of simmering on the back burner. Clear-thinking Virgo has the patience and emotional control to make a fair decision to eventide the matter.

Virgo's natural tendency to share thoughts with pals and kin can be worthwhile. But there are some things better kept to one's self. Take care not to frighten or insult others with your ideas.

Next week will start smoothly, thanks to your careful planning.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Things are looking up. Libra. Someone you haven't seen in ages is headed back into your life — quite possibly this week — and he or she could make you happier than you've been in a long, long time. A word of caution: Don't let your good fortune make you greedy.

Use all your Libra charm and sense of humor to smooth over a misunderstanding with someone in authority.

Travel could prove trifling than usual now.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Alas, look out Saturn, Scorpio. The stars are flashing you a warning sign this week, and it's worth paying attention to.

Someone important has his eye on you and that could be bad news. Watch where you walk to avoid treading on fishy bait.

On a brighter note, an exciting proposition could come your way. When it does, go for it.

A young friend or relative will soon make you very happy — and very proud. Congratulations!

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Someone close to you will enjoy amazing good fortune soon. You will be part of the celebration and joy.

ACCUSED THIEF SWIPES CAR OF JUDGE WHO SET HIM FREE

Teenager Eric Whipple is back in the slammer again after a judge released him without bail on a car theft charge — and he was arrested a few days later and charged with stealing the judge's car!

Police say Whipple, 18, had no idea the car he stole belonged to His Honor, but he'll have to tell that to another judge.

Meanwhile, he's back in jail waiting for trial on charges of car theft and second-degree burglary.

"I told him it was the judge's car and he ignored advice," Det. John Olson of the Seattle, Wash., police department told The NEWS. "He was surprised."

"He took the car from in front of the judge's home. He said he had no idea where the judge lived. He picked the car out of the blue. He looks for an open door and a spare key in the glove compartment and that's how the judge left his car."

The victim of the car theft, Seattle District Court Judge Philip Killian, refused to comment on the case, nor did he say whether he has changed his views on releasing suspects from jail while they're awaiting trial.

Judge Killian's car — a 1989 Honda Civic station wagon with a couple of baby seats in the back — has been returned.

Meanwhile, young Whipple is stuck in jail because he can't come up with $21,000 — the bail amount set for him by a more cynical judge than Killian.

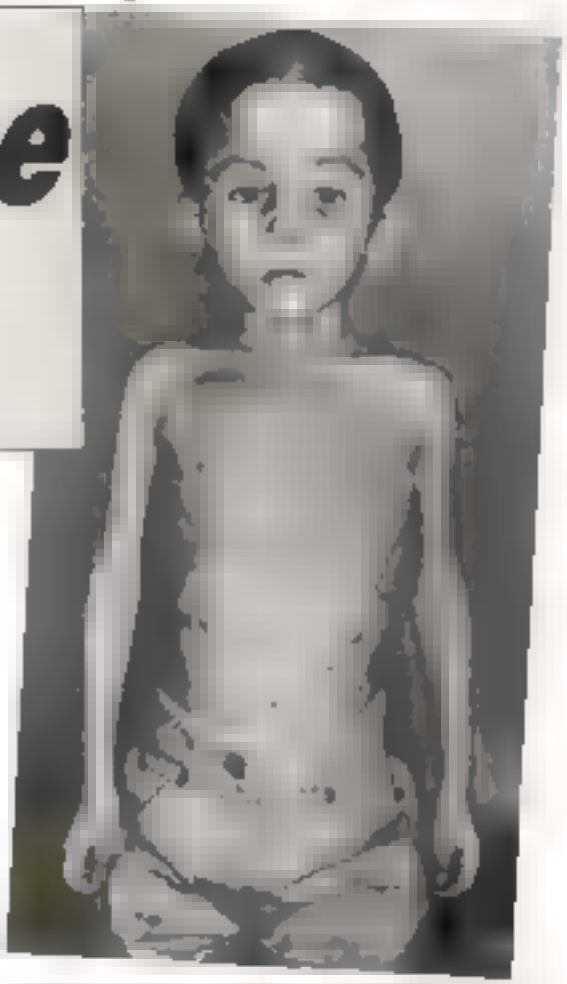
Boy taken into custody by shocked cops after he's . . .

Treated worse than a dog!



By PETE COOKE

In a case that broke the hearts of hardened street cops, a courageous little boy endured a nightmarish life locked in his room, shackled to his bed and stealing food from the family dog to survive, authorities said.

Police in Orem, Utah, said Niki Larson, 6, was suffering from malnutrition and was smaller than his 3-year-old sister when officers opened jolting reports of unfathomable cruelty, rescued the boy and arrested his mother.

The other four children of 33-year-old Loretta Larsen apparently weren't being mistreated, but little Niki never knew anything but abuse, investigators said.

Dr. Nathalie ... said police spokesman Gerald Nielsen. "Niki is about the size of a 3-year-old child. He looks like the starving children in pictures of famine victims in Africa."

Neighbors said that before the recent raid on the Larsen home, officers confiscated two pairs of handcuffs and unopened Christmas presents sent to Niki by his grandparents.

The other children in the family told police that Niki wasn't fed because he was "wasteful," said Nielsen.

"He would go for as long as four days at a time without anything to eat at all," Nielsen said. "Niki told us he would take food from the dog and hide it in his pockets so he could eat it later."

According to the police spokesman, Niki would also scrape leftover food from dirty dishes at night, but her mother put a stop to that by handcuffing him to her bed.

"The poor kid was so skinny that his wrists would slip right through the handcuffs," Nielsen said.

"He was handcuffed by the ankle to the frame of his

Women drivers safer than men

Men, it's time to stop making those jokes about women drivers.

The undisputed evidence is in — the Indian are Citroen times as safe as men at the wheel of a car.

Dr. Jeremy Broughton, a researcher, recently completed a study of every accident in Europe for 1988. He discovered that a male motorist's risk of a fatal crash is one in 300. A woman's is one in 650.

Over the average driving lifetime between the ages of 17 and 70, a male's chances of being injured in one is 33 — a woman's is one in 40.

Incredibly, nearly half of all Britain's male drivers will be injured in accidents during their time on the road. This compares with a third of women drivers.

Cop: He kicked across the like a football!

Authorities investigated reports of Niki being mistreated two years ago but couldn't file charges then, Nielsen said.

"He was kicked across the room like a football a couple years ago and ruptured his pancreas, but we couldn't prove who did it," the police spokesman said.

But this time authorities charged Niki's mother with child abuse and endangering a child to be abused. Her 27-year-old boyfriend, Kirk Shaw, was also charged with child abuse.

"The officer who took Niki out of the house asked him if he was okay and he said, 'I'm okay, but I'm hungry,'" according to Nielsen. "The officer asked him what he wanted to eat and Niki said he wanted a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. The officer couldn't get me anywhere else, so he called his wife and had her bring a peanut butter and jelly sandwich down to the boy."

Nielsen said Niki has gained several pounds since being placed in a foster home, "but he says he misses his mom, and says things like, 'My mom handcuffed me, but she didn't put the handcuffs on real tight.'"

Niki's brothers, ages 11, 9 and 7 and his 3-year-old sister have also been placed in

A middle-aged man was turned down for a bank loan so he helped himself to the cash he needed!

To his credit, employees of the Union City, Tenn., bank said the guy was just about the nicest robber you'd ever want to meet, apologizing the while later he was collecting the money. "He said he was going to die in a few months if he didn't get the money," said a clerk. "He said the government was giving money to Nicaragua and to everyone else and he couldn't even get a loan."

JET PILOT SURVIVES 10-MILE FREE-FALL

"Mother Russia — I'm going down!"

Those were the words of Soviet fighter pilot Melor Ivanov seconds after he bailed out of his disabled MIG-29 and realized his parachute was jammed.

By IRWIN FISHER

By all rights the pilot's 10-mile free-fall should have killed him. But a Radio Moscow report said he came through the ordeal with 17 broken bones and a concussion.

According to that report, the drama began when Ivanov encountered enemy fire after "accidentally entering Iranian airspace."

The exact location of the conflict wasn't named. But Radio Moscow said the 33-year-old pilot ejected a split second before a surface-to-air missile blew his MIG out of the sky.

Harvey tried to dodge the boomerang but it was too late. "It clobbered me in the back of the head," he said

"But my relief didn't last. As I began my descent, it dawned on me that something was wrong. Picking up speed, I felt what was happening. Mother Russia," I thought. My parachute isn't opening — I'm going down." I was trap...

...Adrenaline was surging through my body until it felt like I was on fire.

"I struggled to free my parachute. I clawed and I tugged. But it was hopeless. A million thoughts raced through my mind. I was afraid I would never again see my wife.

"I was afraid I would never again see Russia. I knew I was going to die. The last thing I remember was dreaming what leaving it my eyes and does. Then I passed out."

When the pilot awoke he was in an Iranian hospital, handcuffed from head to toe.

Radio Moscow did not say how he got back to Russia, but it is clear that some sort of deal was struck with the Iranians, possibly a prisoner exchange.

Dr Nikolai Lyaptsev said Ivanov survived the 10-mile plunge thanks to luck and superior conditions. It is believed that he was travelling well over 300 miles an hour when he ejected, fast on his back on seat.

Mikhail Gorbachev was so impressed that he invited the young pilot to the Kremlin to personally congratulate him.

"I am lucky to be alive," said Ivanov.

The previous record for free-fall survival was set in Yugoslavian Vesna Vulovic. According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the Jugoslavenski Aerotransport hostess survived a 33,330-foot fall — without parachute — when the DC-9 she was flying in blew up over Czechoslovakia in 1977. Like pilot Ivanov she woman broke a lot of bones and suffered a head injury but recovered fully.

puts man in a coma

He nearly died — trying to cure his toothache!

...ed his family and friends and baffled doctors who were mystified as he was struck down by a killer brain tumor.

According to Tom's wife Mary, he had filled a small ...with cold running water to swish in his mouth and quell the ache from a bad tooth. Mary thought he was spitting out the water, but apparently he was swallowing most of it.

...and began vomiting about. Then the poor man lapsed into a coma.

The tic was so powerful that Tom tore the straps on the stretcher in the ambulance.

A priest was called and gave the apparently dying man last rites. Finally, doctors pinned down his collapse to the water.
